

GDPR regulation comes into effect in May 2018 and all organisations, large and small, will be impacted. As owners and processors of data, Treasurers must be aware of their obligations

Breaches of data can happen for a variety of reasons. Data encryption is an important way of tackling a potential breach. Technology for storing and processing data correctly and securely is also essential, but must be backed with effective policies, processes and staff training.

Failure to report within 72 hours could result in an additional fine. Companies can report a suspected breach and then provide updates as the situation becomes clearer. Processes need to be in place for rapid notification.
